8 garden tools for beginners

The right tool for the job is essential to working safely and efficiently. This is as true in the workplace as it is in the garden.

Novice gardeners may not know where to begin in regards to which tools they need. The following are eight items that can serve as a solid foundation for beginning gardeners.

1. Gloves: Look for water-resistant gloves that are also breathable.

2. Hand pruners: Choose ergonomic, no-slip handles that will make work easier. Rust-resistant, nonstick blades also are handy.

3. Wheelbarrow: A good wheelbarrow is strong but light enough to maneuver when full.

4. Loppers: Long-handled loppers will fit the bill for thick branches.

5. Hand trowel: While shopping for a trowel, consider getting a hand-held garden fork too, which can aerate soil.

6. Hose/watering can: Keeping gardens hydrated is part of ensuring their health.

A watering can is an easy way to tote water to hard-to-reach pots.

7. Garden kneeler: A comfortable garden kneeler with memory foam or one made from shock-absorbing material can reduce aches and pains.

8. Garden hoe: A garden hoe can be used along with a full-sized shovel, trowel and garden rake.

This list is just the tip of the garden tool iceberg. ©Metro

Now Here's A Tip by JoAnn Derson

• "Stay ahead of the drain: Pour a tea kettle of boiling water down the drain once a month, or if you notice the drain slowing. The hot water can break up material collecting inside the drain. Half a cup of baking soda added to the water will absorb any odors that are building."

Our Daily Bread

A Good Name
 Today's Scripture: Proverbs 10:1-7
The memory of the righteous is blessed, but the name of the wicked will rot. Proverbs 10:7

On Memorial Day in the United States, thousands of people visit cemeteries and monuments to remember and honor their loved ones. They ponder a name carved in stone and recall the person for whom it stands.

This kind of reflection on the lives of those who have gone before us can encourage us to evaluate the way we are living today. When people hear our name, do they think of someone who is faithfully living for Christ?

King Solomon observed: "The memory of the righteous is blessed" (Proverbs 10:7). "A good name is to be chosen rather than great riches" (22:1). "A good name is better than precious ointment" (Eccles. 7:1).

A solid reputation and loving relationships are high achievements. Honesty, integrity, and generosity in life are more valuable than the most expensive funeral. Perfume fades, but the aroma of our lives lingers on.

By our attitudes and actions, we are creating the memories that will be associated with our names in life and in death. Today we have an opportunity to renew our commitment to Christ and to the making of a good name—a name that honors Him and encourages those we love for years to come. Do you have a good name? By: David C. McCasland

This is the wish I always make, The prayer I always pray: Lord, may my life help other lives It touches by the way. —Anon.

The memory of a faithful life speaks more eloquently than words.

Recipe Corner

2 medium tomatoes, seeded and diced
 1/2 C. diced red onion
 1/4 C. lime juice
 2 tsp. ground cumin
 1/2 tsp. salt
 3 Tbsp. minced fresh cilantro or parsley
 1 jalapeno pepper, seeded, chopped
 1 beef flank steak (about 1 1/2 lbs.)
 1 large onion, halved and sliced
 1 Tbsp. vegetable oil
 6 flour tortillas (6"), warmed
 Canned black beans and guacamole

STEAK FAJITAS

• In a bowl, combine the first seven ingredients. Cover and refrigerate. Broil or grill steak over medium-hot heat for 6-8 minutes on each side or until meat reaches desired doneness (for rare, a meat thermometer should read 140°, medium 160°, well-done 170°). Meanwhile, in a skillet, sauté onion in oil until crisp-tender. Slice steak into thin strips across the grain; place on tortillas. Top with onion and the reserved tomato relish. Serve with black beans and guacamole. Yield: 6 servings. NOTE: When cutting or seeding hot peppers, use rubber or plastic gloves to protect your hands. Avoid touching your face.

Spring Brings the Quest for Trout, Turkeys, and Morel Mushrooms (Part 2 of 2)

I don't know about you, but in our family, hide-and-seek was always a popular activity. (Usually, when mom needed a break from us kids.) I enjoyed playing it as a child with my dad and siblings, so it was a tradition I carried on with my own children. It was always a challenge finding new places to hide each time we played. Whenever our kids couldn't find me, they would ask my wife for help and she would simply say, "Nugget, go find dad." Typically, our golden retriever would sniff me out in a minute and the kiddos would be very pleased they had found dad. Now, morel mushroom hunting is very much a game of hide-and-seek and the woods are a big place to search, so it can get frustrating, unless you know how to narrow down your search.

Morel mushrooms come out each Spring, typically when the soil temperature reaches 50°F. That often means daytime highs in the 60's with nighttime lows in the 40's. (This year has been anything but typical, given we've had highs approaching 80°F and lows below 30°F within the last ten days.) Good mushroom hunters know the soil doesn't warm up at the same rate in all spots, based on geography and topography. In other words, the first morels are going to appear on south and west facing slopes, since they get the most sun; and initially they'll emerge down in the valleys because the ground warms up quicker there than up on the ridgetops. Prime morel picking time can be a very narrow window of only a week to ten days in any given spot, but as things warm up and soil temps become too warm on the south and west facing slopes, it becomes time to start looking on east and north facing slopes. The same can be said about starting the season looking at lower elevations and then progressively searching at higher elevations as conditions warm up. "Woods wisdom" I've learned from more experienced hunters says the soil temp is right for finding morels when the mayapples have come up and the oak tree leaves are the size of a squirrel's ear. (In many locations, those two predictors exist right now!)

Morels, like many mushrooms, grow by a mycorrhizal relationship with a variety of tree species. This means they have a symbiotic relationship with the intertwined tree roots underground, whereby the mushroom's mycelium, which are their hypha or "roots", draw water and mineral nutrients from the soil for both the mushroom and the tree, while simultaneously, the tree roots pass off the tree's photosynthesis products, which are carbohydrates, to the mushroom. Both the mushrooms and the trees benefit from this underground exchange and in our area, morels commonly exhibit this behavior with elm, ash, apple, maple, oak, sycamore, and tulip trees. The theory goes that when these trees start to die, morel mushrooms appear prolifically, since they will soon lose the living host they've been exchanging nutrients with, so they must produce spores to carry on their next generation. That is why keying in on dying trees, especially elms in our area, can lead to morels and where you find one, look closely because you'll often find more since they tend to fan out corresponding to the dying tree's root network. The standing recommendation is to gather morels in a mesh bag, since this allows the mushroom spores to be widely distributed as you carry them out of the woods, thereby aiding their reproduction.

Turning your harvested morels into table fare is relatively easy. I cut mine off 1/2-inch above the ground with a sharp knife, which helps limit the amount of dirt on each mushroom stem. While some folks dry/dehydrate their morels for future use, we always eat ours soon after harvesting them. I like to wash them off in a colander under cold running water and then slice them cross-sectionally into 1/2-inch rings (much like calamari). Cook them in a covered frying pan sprayed with olive oil on low with a little olive oil drizzled over top of them for 5 or 6 minutes. (Many folks prefer butter.) You will soon find all your efforts finding morels are well worth the delicacy you get to enjoy. Bon Appetit! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2020

Here is the bag full of morel mushrooms Grey picked for their Mother's Day meal. You'll immediately notice the stems are hollow and the caps appear folded like natural sea sponges. Their extraordinary taste makes the time searching for them afield well worth the effort.
