Strange But True

by Lucie Winborne

• A dog that had been kicked by a driver returned with a bunch of its friends and proceeded to trash the man's car, chewing up the fenders and wipers.

• Charles Joughin, the chief baker on the Titanic, allegedly treaded water for two hours before being rescued from the sunken vessel. He later claimed that the copious amounts of whiskey he consumed before the ship went down kept his body warm enough to survive the subfreezing ocean temperature.

• Some birds change the size of their brain every winter.

Our Daily Bread

Together in Jesus

In Christ we . . . form
one body, and each member belongs to all the others. Romans 12:5
READ Romans 12:1-5

Most of the three hundred residents of Whittier, Alaska, live in one big apartment complex,
and that's why Whittier is called a "town under one roof." Amie, a former resident, says, "I didn't have to step outside the building the grocery store, notary public, school, and post office were on our ground floor, just an elevator ride away!"

"Because life there was so comfortable, I often wanted to keep to myself, thinking I didn't need anyone," Amie shares. "But the residents are so warm. They look out for each other. I learned that they need me, and I need them."

Like Amie, we may at times want to keep to ourselves and avoid community.
The latter seems less stressful! But Scripture says that a believer in Jesus should have a healthy balance of solitude and fellowship with other believers.
The apostle Paul likens the body of believers to the human body. Just as each body part has a distinct function, every believer has a distinct role (Romans 12:4). Just as a body part can't exist alone, a believer can't live the life of faith in isolation (v. 5). It's in the midst of community that we use our gifts (vv. 6-8;

1 Peter 4:10) and grow to be like Jesus (Romans 12:9-21).

We need one another; our togetherness is in Christ (v. 5). With His help, as we "look out for each other," we can cultivate a deeper relationship with Him and show others His love. By Karen Huang

REFLECT and PRAY

How has community in Jesus helped you in your walk with God?

How have other believers encouraged you?

Dear God, thank You for my brothers and sisters in Christ.

The Osage tribes used witch hazel bark to treat skin ulcers and sores. The Potawatomi steamed twigs of the plant to soothe sore muscles. The Iroquoii brewed a tea from it to treat dysentery, colds, and coughs. The early European settlers observed native American tribes using sticks from the witch hazel shrub to find underground sources of water: the "dowsing" end of the forked branch would bend when underground water was detected. - Brenda Weaver

Paws Corner

by Sam Mazzotta

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I adopted a beautiful black Lab. "Sadie" was 10 weeks old, well socialized to people and other dogs by the shelter staff, and started training beautifully. Now she is 7 months old, and some days it seems like she has forgotten all of her behavioral training. She won't respond to commands, she pulls the leash and she jumps on people at the door. Why is she suddenly such a handful? - Barry G. in Bellingham, WA

DEAR BARRY: Congratulations! Your puppy is reaching the "rebellious teenager" phase of growth. This is a totally normal (if irritating) phase of a healthy, happy young dog, and it starts at about 7 to 10 months of age.

Much like human teenagers, puppies at this phase develop fun traits like selective hearing (they won't always listen or respond when called), challenging authority and testing boundaries. Part of what's happening is hormonal changes and growing pains, along with more familiarity with her environment and the routine you've set. These are important stages in Sadie's development, so don't get discouraged. You haven't failed at training her.

During a regression (which can also happen in adult dogs), it's important to focus on the basics of behavior training and maintain the routine you've established. If you walk Sadie each morning and practice "sit," "lay down," "heel" and "come" (recall from the end of the leash), don't change.

It's also important to manage your frustration. That can be hard when an adolescent dog is tugging the leash around your ankles! Breathe deeply, remind yourself that this, too, shall pass, and keep the leash short. ©2025 King Features Synd., Inc.

Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

What is the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy and What Do They Do?

"Buy land, it's one thing they aren't making any more of." Have you ever heard that financial guidance/ investment advice? Then there's always the real estate axiom perpetually brought up, "Location, location, location." It seems it's human nature when land/property is more in demand and property values are rising to completely forget about greenspace and the need for tracts of land and water set aside to ensure we all have clean air, fresh water, habitat for wildlife, places for outdoor recreation, and just space where individuals can connect with nature close to home. I've brought up in past columns we are truly blessed, those men and women who came before us here in Pennsylvania had the foresight to set aside 16.3% or roughly 1/6 of our great State as public lands in the form of PA state forests, PA state game lands, PA state parks, the Allegheny National Forest, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Projects, county/city parks, etc. Believe it or not, there is still a need to set aside some very key properties to maintain their natural states.

In last week's piece about the PA Game Commission's Deer Management Assistance Program (DMAP), I brought up the fact one of the largest private landowners who have their properties enrolled is the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy. I learned this when DMAP tags first went on sale back on Aug. 11, 2025 and I was searching through the DMAP areas by county. It occurred to me when I wrote that, many readers probably are not familiar with the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy (WPC) and their ongoing mission. Allow me to introduce you to the WPC by first pointing out their highly informative website is <https://waterlandlife.org> and it shows up with a straightforward header of "Protecting and restoring natural areas." If you go there, you will discover their mission statement, which reads, "The Western Pennsylvania Conservancy protects and restores exceptional places to provide our region with clean waters and healthy forests, wildlife and natural areas for the benefit of present and future generations. The Conservancy creates green spaces and gardens, contributing to the vitality of our cities and towns, and preserves Fallingwater, a symbol of people living in harmony with nature."

The eight scrolling photographs at the top of their home page provide a snapshot of what their ongoing work entails. The captions read: (1) Saving exceptional places since 1932; (2) Engaging every generation; (3) Bringing you everyday nature; (4) Giving back to our neighborhoods; (5) Have some facetime with nature; (6) Enhancing public lands for all; (7) Preserving Fallingwater, on the UNESCO World Heritage List; and (8) Find yourself in nature. Some of the action statements, which can be expanded to give much more details on their efforts, may resonate with you as an outdoor-oriented individual: (1) We preserve Western Pennsylvania's most exceptional natural land; (2) We restore rivers and streams; (3) We study wildlife and their habitats; (4) We plant trees and gardens in cities and towns; (5) We own and care for Fallingwater; and (6) We have a network of dedicated members and volunteers. Since their inception in 1932, the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy has permanently protected more than 265,000 acres of land – forests, streams, meadows, farmlands, and more in Western PA. They have also restored more than 3,000 miles of Western PA's local rivers and streams through streambank restorations, in-stream habitat work, and riparian buffer tree planting to provide clean water for wildlife to thrive, people to drink, and places for people to paddle and fish. Additionally, the WPC owns and manages 45 preserves comprising over 14,000 acres across 16 counties that are open to the public for a wide variety of outdoor activities.

Close to home, the WPC's first major land purchase in the 1940's was 1,000 acres in Slippery Rock Gorge that eventually became McConnells Mill State Park. It was the first of 11 PA State Parks started by WPC land acquisitions and other notable ones are Ohioypyle, Raccoon Creek, and Erie Bluffs. An Oct. 2, 2025 press release reveals the WPC was highly involved in the creation of a new access point on Slippery Rock Creek at Rose Point Park for whitewater paddlers and elaborates on the process of obtaining a grant through the WPC's Canoe Access Development Fund. I only recently learned three of the WPC's 45 preserves are here in Lawrence County and the 394 acres of the Plain Grove Fens Natural Area are open for hiking, wildlife watching, birding, fishing, and hunting. If you are looking for new places to explore and experience nature firsthand, the WPC offers the opportunity to get outdoors on their lands, learn more through their website and newsletter, and possibly you might consider becoming a member. The WPC has been and continues to be a champion for PA's public lands!
